AESTHETICS

It is very difficult to choose something that is absolutely devoid of aesthetic pleasure.
—Marcel Duchamp

All the world is not, of course, a stage, but the crucial ways in which it isn't are not easy to specify.
—Erving Goffman

Aesthetics is more than philosophy or theory of art and beauty; it is a way of inhabiting space, a particular location, a way of looking and becoming.
—bell hooks

For me a work of fiction exists only insofar as it affords me what I shall bluntly call aesthetic bliss, that is a sense of being somehow, somewhere, connected with other states of being where art (curiosity, tenderness, kindness, ecstasy) is the norm.
—Vladimir Nabokov

I look; morning to night I am never done with looking.
Looking I mean not just standing around, but standing around as though with your arms open.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course will address the complexity of the contemporary aesthetic experience through a related series of questions that drive the discourse in contemporary visual and performing arts: How do we open ourselves to what is unfamiliar in the arts and what is the purpose in doing so? Who decides what is of value in the arts and how are these determinations made? How does art respond to culture and how does it lead it? Whose voice is allowed access to speak through the arts? What is the place of beauty in the arts and how has that concept changed over time? Just what is art anyway? In this course we will look at how contemporary artists have presented us with answers to these questions that are sometimes startling and difficult, sometimes pleasurable and affirming, but always provocative and engaging.

The notion of the aesthetic will be examined as it pertains to experiences in nature, in the environment, in the senses, in social and cultural systems, conventions and institutions, and in works of art. Individuals’ concepts of the aesthetic will be identified and analyzed, and the course will work at an expansion of the notion of the aesthetic to include conceptions that go beyond “beauty” and convention. Emphasis will be placed on examining a broad range of contemporary art and culture to engage an expansive, amplified, and subversive experience of the aesthetic. In addition, the current cultural wars being waged over the forms, content, and aims of contemporary art will be examined for their suggestions of a shift in the governing aesthetic paradigms. The student will become aware of how the contemporary practice of art moves beyond the production of artworks to involve the artist’s disciplined efforts to observe, engage, and interpret the processes of living.

The course aims at the creation of heightened aesthetic perception. Emphasis will be placed on how the process of a refined aesthetic consciousness is grounded in the raw materials of human experience and daily life, as well as in art experiences. Through observation, contemplation, sensation, reading, writing, attendance at arts events, and heightened self-awareness, the student will engage as an aesthetic observer of and participant in the world.

REQUIRED TEXTS

- Other reading assignments as listed in the Course Outline.

REQUIRED VISUAL MATERIALS

Videos and DVDs assigned to be viewed outside of class are available either in the Media Services area of the Johnson Center Library, or rental services, or online.
COURSE REQUIREMENTS

• Class attendance is essential as material will be presented that cannot be replicated outside of class. Visual materials presented in class are not available in the library.
• Once the class starts, do not leave the classroom without permission of the instructor.
• Cell phones and pagers must be OFF in class.
• All internet devices must be OFF during class.
• Completion of assigned readings and videos, and participation in class discussion indicating familiarity with these materials.
• Completion of weekly responses to the assigned material. See attached guidelines.
• Off-campus museum visits as indicated on the Course Outline. Each museum experience will be addressed in the Weekly response. Document your visits with photos. (Alternative to photos: Gather museum publications [pamphlets or brochures] that supply documentation of your attendance.)
• Should students have to miss class for any reason, they are expected to take initiative in obtaining notes, assignments, and handouts from class partners.
• Class communications will be sent via GMU email. You must activate, maintain, and regularly check your GMU email. You are responsible for notices sent via email.

EVALUATION

• 30% PREPARED participation in class
• 10% Assigned museum visits
• 60% Weekly Responses

Grading Standards:
• A grade of A is given only for superlative work that demonstrates a profound commitment to the course material and demonstrates mastery of its content, and further, that goes on to employ this material as a springboard for independent thought and work.
• A grade of B is given for exceptional work that completely fulfills all the requirements of the course in a conscientious and dedicated manner, and further, that demonstrates mastery of the course content.
• A grade of C is given for work that fulfills all the requirements of the course in a satisfactory manner, but that falls short of demonstrating rigor and mastery. This is the average grade.
• A grade of D is given for work that falls short of being satisfactory in terms of completion and/or engagement.
• A grade of F is given for work that fails to fulfill the requirements of the course as listed above.

An Important Note about Grading: Requirements for this course are not graded numerically; rather I will adhere to the Grading Standards listed above, which assess rigor of thought and mastery of the course content, as demonstrated by your verbal and written work. Class participation and completion of assignments are the minimum requirements for a satisfactory (i.e., C) grade.
WEEKLY RESPONSES

Written responses to the class material will document the development of your thought over the course of the semester. These writings, which must be typed and printed on paper, are turned in each Monday for the readings/videos to be discussed that week. These responses will form the basis of class discussion. (NOTE: Writing is NOT accepted by electronic transmission. No exceptions.) These writings are as follows:

1) After completing the assigned readings and visual materials, record your reactions to the main ideas or themes. Examine what was intriguing, stimulating, provocative, or insightful about each assigned work. Record your insights and “ahas.” Do not make general statements; explain what you mean with detail, examples, and further thoughts. Cite relevant passages, events, and examples from the readings and videos, where appropriate.

2) In the same fashion, briefly record your reactions to materials that were presented in the previous class. Summarize briefly the main ideas of the discussion generated in the previous class. Do not simply re-write your class notes; respond to what was presented there. Raise questions about the discussion, and note what is still unclear, vague, puzzling, or disturbing. Similarly, record your insights and “ahas.” Use this opportunity to revisit your previous responses; did class discussion clarify things or change your ideas about what you had written previously?

At the top of the response, list the number of the assignment as listed on the course outline. The weekly response may treat each assigned subject separately, or you may choose to group the readings and videos into an essay that analyzes them comprehensively. Whichever way you decide to organize your response, list the subjects of the writing in the response header.

NOTE: The subject of the response is the ideas in the readings/videos, not whether you liked or did not like the assigned work or artists.

All of these writings should not just address the assigned readings, videos, or museum experiences, but they should also make connections with other materials that you are reading, seeing, thinking about, etc. They may contain descriptions, observations, questions, etc. about aesthetic experiences; ruminations about materials presented in class; relevant quotations; thoughts about other arts experiences you are having; etc. You should be recording the development of your notions about aesthetic experience.

These writings should constitute a record of developments in your thinking that the course materials may invoke and provoke. Be open, responsive, creative, and thoughtful. Taken together, these responses should document the development of your intellectual development over the course of the semester.
More than half of your grade will be based on these written responses. They will be evaluated on the basis of the thought and care demonstrated, the completeness and quality of presentation, the engagement with the ideas in the readings and videos, and evidence of intellectual development.

One letter grade will be deducted for late responses. (The only exception is documented illness or emergency.)

MUSEUM VISITS

The week of April 11 has been set aside for museum visits on your own time (in lieu of classes). You may go to the museums at any time that is convenient for you before April 25, when the museum response is due. The museums are open every day from 10:00am-5:30pm; admission is free. The closest Metro stops are Smithsonian and L’Enfant Plaza.

Please visit all of the following museums; you are free to choose the specific exhibitions at each of these museums that interest you:

- Arthur M. Sackler Gallery, 1050 Independence Avenue (www.asia.si.edu)
- National Museum of African Art, 950 Independence Avenue SW (http://africa.si.edu)
- Hirshhorn Museum, Independence Avenue at 7th Street SW (http://hirshhorn.si.edu)

Write a response to the museum exhibitions that follows the general guidelines set forth in “Weekly responses.” After visiting the required museums, record what you saw and experienced, as well as your responses to the art. Document your visits with photos. (Alternative to photos: Gather museum publications [pamphlets or brochures] that supply documentation of your attendance.) These responses can be submitted at any time up to April 25.

GUIDELINES FOR CLASS DISCUSSION

NOTE: There are varying comfort levels with speaking extemporaneously in a group. If you are reluctant to speak in class, please challenge yourself to offer oral commentary. Your insights and questions are vital to our collective success.

Class discussion will be structured around the idea of a seminar, i.e., each member of the class is responsible for contributing to discussion of the readings, films, and assignments. (Note: Participation is worth 30% of your final grade.) Each class member is responsible for the success or failure of the discussion. The following guidelines will be followed in class discussion:
• You must bring assigned readings to class, as well as something to write with and on.
• You must come on time and come prepared.
• You must discuss carefully and be prepared to listen as well as to talk.
• Discussion will be grounded in readings and videos, and will remain focused and structured.
• Respect for the opinions of other class members forms the basis of class discussion.
• If, for some reason, you have come to class unprepared, identify yourself as such and listen to the discussion.

Use the following guidelines for class preparation:
• Mark your books when reading to note passages of interest or curiosity or confusion.
• Make a list of questions about the reading, noting relevant page numbers.
• Come to class prepared to discuss the reading and videos in detail, focusing on specific passages from the texts and videos.
• Come prepared with written assignments for each reading, video, or outside assignment.
• After each class, write again about the reading, video, or discussion. Note how the discussion has affected your thinking about the subject.

IMPORTANT NOTE: The grade for class discussion is cumulative, reflecting the quality of your discussion over the course of the semester.
In accordance with George Mason University policy, turn off all beepers, cellular telephones and other wireless communication devices at the start of class. The instructor of the class will keep his/her cell phone active to assure receipt of any Mason Alerts in a timely fashion; or in the event that the instructor does not have a cell phone, he/she will designate one student to keep a cell phone active to receive such alerts.

Commitment to Diversity
This class will be conducted as an intentionally inclusive community that celebrates diversity and welcomes the participation in the life of the university of faculty, staff and students who reflect the diversity of our plural society. All may feel free to speak and to be heard without fear that the content of the opinions they express will bias the evaluation of their academic performance or hinder their opportunities for participation in class activities. In turn, all are expected to be respectful of each other without regard to race, class, linguistic background, religion, political beliefs, gender identity, sex, sexual orientation, ethnicity, age, veteran’s status, or physical ability.

Statement on Ethics in Teaching and Practicing Art and Design
As professionals responsible for the education of undergraduate and graduate art and design students, the faculty of the School of Art adheres to the ethical standards and practices incorporated in the professional Code of Ethics of our national accreditation organization, The National Association of Schools of Art and Design (NASAD).

Open Studio Hours
SOA teaching studios are open to students for extended periods of time mornings, evenings and weekends whenever classes are not in progress. Policies, procedures and schedules for studio use are established by the SOA studio faculty and are posted in the studios.

Requests for non-selective withdrawals and retroactive adds (adds after the last day of classes) must be approved by the academic dean of the college in which the student’s major is located. For AVT majors, that is the CVPA Office of Academic Affairs, Performing Arts Building A407.

Students with Disabilities and Learning Differences
If you have a diagnosed disability or learning difference and you need academic accommodations, please inform me at the beginning of the semester and contact the Disabilities Resource Center (SUB I room 234, 703-993-2474). You must provide me with a faculty contact sheet from that office outlining the accommodations needed for your disability or learning difference. All academic accommodations must be arranged in advance through the DRC.

Official Communications via GMU E-Mail
Mason uses electronic mail to provide official information to students. Examples include communications from course instructors, notices from the library, notices about academic standing, financial aid information, class materials, assignments, questions, and instructor feedback. Students are responsible for the content of university communication sent to their Mason e-mail account, and are required to activate that account and check it regularly.

Attendance Policies
Students are expected to attend the class periods of the courses for which they register. In-class participation is important not only to the individual student, but also to the class as a whole. Because class participation may be a factor in grading, instructors may use absence, tardiness, or early departure as de facto evidence of nonparticipation. Students who miss an exam with an acceptable excuse may be penalized according to the individual instructor's grading policy, as stated in the course syllabus.

Honor Code
Students in this class are bound by the Honor Code, as stated in the George Mason University Catalog. The honor code requires that the work you do as an individual be the product of your own individual synthesis or integration of ideas. (This does not prohibit collaborative work when it is approved by your instructor.) As a faculty member, I have an obligation to refer the names of students who may have violated the Honor Code to the Student Honor Council, which treats such cases very seriously. No grade is important enough to justify cheating, for which there are serious consequences that will follow you for the rest of your life. If you feel unusual pressure about your grade in this or any other course, please talk to me or to a member of the GMU Counseling Center staff.

Using someone else’s words or ideas without giving them credit is plagiarism, a very serious Honor Code offense. It is very important to understand how to prevent committing plagiarism when using material from a source. If you wish to quote verbatim, you must use the exact words and punctuation just as the passage appears in the original and must use quotation marks and page numbers in your citation. If you want to paraphrase or summarize ideas from a source, you must put the ideas into your own words, and you must cite the source, using the APA or MLA format. (For assistance with documentation, I recommend Diana Hacker, A Writer’s Reference.) The exception to this rule is information termed general knowledge—information that is widely known and stated in a number of sources. Determining what is general knowledge can be complicated, so the wise course is, “When in doubt, cite.”

Be especially careful when using the Internet for research. Not all Internet sources are equally reliable; some are just plain wrong. Also, since you can download text, it becomes very easy to inadvertently plagiarize. If you use an Internet source, you must cite the exact URL in your paper and include with it the last date that you successfully accessed the site.

Writing Center
Students who are in need of intensive help with grammar, structure or mechanics in their writing should make use of the services of Writing Center, located in Robinson A116 (703-993-1200). The services of the Writing Center are available by appointment, online and, occasionally, on a walk-in basis. The Collaborative Learning Hub Located in Johnson Center 311 (703-993-3141), the lab offers in-person one-on-one support for the Adobe Creative Suite, Microsoft Office, Blackboard, and a variety of other software. Dual monitor PCs make the lab ideal for collaborating on group projects, Macs are also available; as well as a digital recording space, collaborative tables, and a SMART Board. Free workshops are also available (Adobe and Microsoft) through Training and Certification; visit ittraining.gmu.edu to see the schedule of workshops and to sign up.
