

To understand how sculpture has evolved through civilization into its position within today's contemporary culture.

To carefully consider how an object, the materials of which it is made, how it is crafted, and the context within which it exists affect our understanding and experience.

To locate meaning within the formation of work, understanding that the making process can be used as a means to generate ideas.

To examine the value of ambiguity in visual design in relation to the familiar and functional.

To experience the physical and psychological possibilities of scale in sculpture: the intimate which can physically relate to the hand, but also head as a conceptual model; the bodily scale to which we physically relate, and the architectural in which the body fits.

Setting Goals and Getting Started:

Write or update your artist statement. Write a Statement of Intent— goals for the spring semester and outline your concerns related to research and production of your next body of work. Relate how your goals and plans will result in a successful final show and final body of work. For advanced students, in your statement of intent please discuss what changes might occur to your existing art statement as a result of your new goals and plans (and why). In your discussion please also address the following issues:

- Unifying elements in your previous works
- Where you want your work to “go” this semester and what you want to accomplish
- Long term ideas about the direction of your work (and livelihood)
- Your artistic sensibility and personal aesthetic
- Artists, theorists, and writers that are significant to your practice
- A reading goal for this semester
- Social, political, generational, and mass culture events and/or phenomena that influence your approach.
- Issues of identity, biography, and personal narrative and how those ideas enter your work

Assignments

Assignments are student directed with my feedback and approval. Each student will make a lot of sculpture, developing obsession, and defining the direction of their work based on personal research, reading, and drawings.

Documentation

Your projects must be photographed and these images must be turned in at the end of the semester. Since we experience much of what artists do through images, your images must reflect the standard of a professional artist, with a good portfolio that you can share on your website, send to curators, apply for grants, etc. Include detail shots and documentation of the making processes along the way.

Field Trip

Group discussion on desires and possibilities

Details TBA

Readings

In addition to the reading above, advanced students must make a reading list and set up a reading goal. Readings may include findings from general library perusing, artists whose work you'd like to know more about, subjects that spark your thinking, identifying a favorite author or critic. One of these readings will be read by the class and you will lead the class in discussion related to this topic.

Sketchbook

By now your sketchbooks should be full of all kinds of thoughts, writings, pictures, lists, and loose ideas. They are an index of engagement through your journey as a human being and an artist from which you may continuously draw. Your sketchbook(s) should be with you in class. When discussing ideas for new work, we will need to see drawings of the forms taking shape.

Critique

Critique will be held every three weeks. Your project is expected to be complete and ready by the beginning of class. If you or your project is not present at the critique, your project immediately drops a letter grade. Every project will culminate in a critique.

Participation

Open discussion is very important to the course and expected. Students are always encouraged to voice their opinion, even if it might seem unrelated.

In this class, you must confer the ability to speak up in public and to debate rationally. We work to create a safe environment in which each student practices the vital skill of arguing a point in front of a group of semi-strangers. It isn't enough to have done the work. Some of you may be used to talking and advocating your point of view, defending your ideas and expressing yourselves. Others may have learned to sit quietly at the margins and let others run the show. Why is this? We are here to address the safe practice of not only new projects and skills, but new behaviors as well. Experimenting is safe. School is a laboratory in which we experiment with ideas. We learn to debate rationally and respectfully, without losing our tempers, looking for common ground on which to build.

Attendance/ Presence

Each absence will affect your grade. A student's final grade will be lowered when absent for more than three sessions and each time afterward. An absence on a critique day will automatically lower your grade by one grade mark for the semester. Students are expected to be in class on time, ready to work. Frequent lateness will count as an absence.

Your presence is mandatory during critique, lecture, and discussion. Use the restroom, text your lover, etc. before class. We always take a break halfway through.

I teach this course at the assigned times and will not relay the missed information to an unexcused student. Therefore if you miss class or come to class late, you will need to get the information you missed from one of your classmates. Take a moment and exchange contacts with two new colleagues.

Phones and Computers

Phone use, specifically during lectures, demonstrations, or discussion, will irritate your teacher and fellow classmates and result in a lower grade. Silence them completely including their vibration. There are breaks during class for your phone and restroom needs. While this technology during studio time can be helpful, make sure it's use is focused directly to your research such as looking up artists and designers, researching materials and techniques, etc.

Grading

Grading is based on the quality of work produced and upon the quality of the process the student has undergone in making that work. The working process will affect grades. A good studio practice demands regular work habits, i.e., not consistently last minute work. An A for example would mean that all the work is completed, it is consistently of excellent quality, that the student participated in critical discussions of artworks and readings, and engaged in an exemplary work

Cell Phones: School of Art Policies in accordance with George Mason University policy, turn off all beepers, cellular telephones and other wireless communication devices at the start of class. The instructor of the class will keep his/her cell phone active to assure receipt of any Mason Alerts in a timely fashion; or in the event that the instructor does not have a cell phone, he/she will designate one student to keep a cell phone active to receive such alerts.

Commitment to Diversity: This class will be conducted as an intentionally inclusive community that celebrates diversity and welcomes the participation in the life of the university of faculty, staff and students who reflect the diversity of our plural society. All may feel free to speak and to be heard without fear that the content of the opinions they express will bias the evaluation of their academic performance or hinder their opportunities for participation in class activities. Statement on Ethics in Teaching and Practicing Art and Design: As professionals responsible for the education of undergraduate and graduate art and design students, the faculty of the School of Art adheres to the ethical standards and practices incorporated in the professional Code of Ethics of our national accreditation organization, The National Association of Schools of Art and Design (NASAD).

Official Communications via GMU E-Mail Mason uses electronic mail to provide official information to students. Examples include communications from course instructors, notices from the library, notices about academic standing, financial aid information, class materials, assignments, questions, and instructor feedback. Students are responsible for the content of university communication sent to their Mason e-mail account, and are required to activate that account and check it regularly.

Attendance Policies Students are expected to attend the class periods of the courses for which they register. In-class participation is important not only to the individual student, but also to the class as a whole. Because class participation may be a factor in grading, instructors may use absence, tardiness, or early departure as de facto evidence of nonparticipation. Students who miss an exam with an acceptable excuse may be penalized according to the individual instructor's grading policy, as stated in the course syllabus.

Honor Code Students in this class are bound by the Honor Code, and are responsible knowing the rules, as stated on the George Mason University website's Academic Integrity page (<http://oai.gmu.edu/the-mason-honor-code-2/>). "To promote a stronger sense of mutual responsibility, trust, and fairness among all members of the Mason community, and with the desire for greater academic and personal achievement, we, the student members of the university community, have set forth this honor code:

Student members of the George Mason University community pledge not to cheat, plagiarize, steal, or lie in matters related to academic work.

Mason's Commitment: To create an environment that is innovative, diverse, entrepreneurial, and accessible-helping you avoid accidental or intentional violations of the Honor Code."
